A common error exists in the minds of many students relative to the place of studying medicine; those who intend practising among the diseases of the West and South should certainly educate themselves at a School whose Faculty are practically acquainted with those diseases.

That the public may be satisfied of the permanency of this school, we feel it our duty to state, that the Trustees and Faculty form a Unit in action, which augurs well for its future success; and that the peculiar internal organization which connects them, cannot be interrupted.

THE BENEFITS OF ADVERTISING. THE BENEFITS OF ADVERTISING.

We learn that Dr. S. P. Townsend has sold out the good will of his Sarsaparilla business, including machings and raw material on hand, for the large sum of $100,000.—This is an illustration of the advantages and benefits of advertising. The purchasers are Messrs. Nostrand & Bach; both wealthy and well known individuals. They have, we understand, employed the celebrated Chemist, Dr. James E. Chilton, who will hereafter have the compounding department under his own immediate supervision. They are mell of enterprise, and will, no doubt, sustain the character of the celebrated medicine, which has the reputation of boing the best preparation of Sarsaparilla made in the United States. The new proprietors, we understand, warrant their article to stand in all climates any length of time, which we have left doubt of, when manufactured by so practical a chemist ad-

From this it will be seen that a bare majority can make any amendment which may be desired, and that the whole process need not occupy more than two years, the meetings of the California Legislature being annual. Now, when it is remembered that of the members of the convention that framed the constitution, a majority were from the South, it is easy to divine the motive for making an anti-slavery constitution, so easy of amendment. No doubt the influence of the Executive was brought to bear in favor of the insertion of an anti-slavery restriction; but now that California has been admitted as a sovereign State, not the fiercest Free Soiler will dare question her right to amend her constitution in any the United States-and, as we have already seen, her constitution provides for its own amendment or alteration by a majority. Whether that majority can be obtained, is the next question.

Dodging the Balls.

We make the following amusing extract from "Recollections of a Campaign, by one who saw the Elephant," which we find in the Illinois State Register. It has reference to the siege of Vera Cruz:

The morning after the flag had been so triumphantly raised upon the hill overlooking the city, was a busy one to those who had kept watch and guard over that estimable treasure during the night .-Scarce was it light enough to recognise your fellow sentinel from a pile of sand, ere the "villainous saltpetre" was again put in requistion from every fort in the city, from the castle out in the sea, and the escopetes and muskets of the lancers and infantry, who occupied the hills. It fairly rained iron. The men dug trenches in the light sand with their hands as a ort of protection from the balls of the foe.

"Dodging the balls" was also much in vogue, and many were the twists and turns, the fallings down and the rising up, the leaps, and the jokes that were practiced by "the boys." It was the most serious game of "corner ball" I ever saw played. This thing of dodging cannon balls may sound strange to the reader, but it is no less strange than true. Now, to attempt to dodge or get out of the way of a musket ball, or even a six pound shot, I admit, would be no easy task, but to move backward or forward, to the right or left, and thus escape one of those tremendous 68 pounders, that we were favored with from the castle, was as easy as "falling off a log," The distance fired was somewhat over two miles, and the course of those "monstrous shapes of death" could River steamboats, once inquired of another whether readily be distinguished from its peculiar humming sound, and as it neared the hill its black ungainly visage was distinctly visible.

It was amusing to see the gyrations, and the ground and lofty tumbling of our black hero, Sam, on this occasion. Poor Sam's heroism at length could stand it no longer. As the sharp, quick, cutting—teit—tsit—tsit—of the musket balls would fly over his head, he would throw up the whites of his eyes like a duck NEWBERN.—Population of Newberne about 4,650; of in a thunder storm, and cry out: "Lord a massy, And as a large ball would strike the tope of the hill and throw up a perfect column of sand, Sam would throw himself flat on his face and lay still for two or three minutes, for fear, as he said, "de black rascal might burst." At last Sam was missed from the hill, and after the troops that had remained there all night were relieved and were filing off to the rear of the hill, the colonel accidentally caught sight of a pair of shoes sticking out from beneath a huge pile of sand. Upon closer investigation of feet, with legs to them, then a body, and presently Sam's wooly head was disinterred.

"You black villian, what are you doing here," said

"Why, look heah, colonel, I don't care for the escopets and muskets—much, or de six pounders and de shot of dat size—but when de dam Mexicans begin to shoot de reg'lar Pennsylbany Dutch ovens, by golly, I tink its time for all nigger servants to hide em diminished heads."

There was more truth than poetry in Sam's idea of the size of a sixty-eight pounder.

the lephant to great advantage.

ers of the Bulletin exclusively, the following pro-Our hero, Tim Nuckles, was a regular descendant gramme of the arrangements privately agreed upon by the Mayor and Councils for receiving M'lle Jenny of one of the "first families," and, although a native, in a manner born, of the State of Alabama, he was, to describe him in his own emphatic language, "some pumpkins, by the everlasting Jehosaphat."

of our organ of reverence, we would add, eternity

As every great man has his own especial peculiarities of character, it may well be supposed that our hero was not wanting in his, to wit: the most wonderful powers of ubiquity, combined with that singular species of stolidity, half natural and half assumed, which would put to fault the most experienced phrenologist, and which is so admirably calculated for the success and impunity of the mountebank, the clown, and the pantaloon.

No "gathering," however privately gotton up, could possibly escape Tim's advent thereto, as he always happened purely by accident just to "drap in," while his remarkable obtuseness of intellect would never allow him to take the hint. (which was often from New York, blowing two trumpets, his own, and given,) that his room was the most desirable part of his company. Continually committing some laughable and glaring absurdity, some almost unpardonable faux pas, which made him the butt of many a passing jest, and the individual "pusson" on whom innumerable practical jokes were perpetrated, Tim had suffered some, both spiritually and temporally, previous to the event we are about to relate.

During Tim's more "halcyon morn of life," he had not been altogether free from those peculiar palpitations of the heart, when in the awe-inspiring presence of a certain Miss Polyphema Patience Ann Jones, which are the sure indications of love—grief fed, hope-apostrophized, languishing, soul-consuming love -- in its incipient and often most dangerous stage But, alas! whatever may have been Miss Polyphema's own individual tender emotions and heart-burnings for the isolated and almost disconsolate Tim,

"She never told her love, But let concealment, like a worm i' the bud, Feed on her damark cheek; she pin'd in thought; And with a green and vellow melancholy, he sat, (like patience on a monument,)

-Tim, miling at"while the disconsolate swain himself received but a sorry reception from old Mr. and Mrs. Jones, who looked upon him with a most scornful and malignant eye. But as opposition, in all matters of the heart, is only calculated to sharpen the appetite of love, so it was in the present instance; and Miss Polyphema, who, at first, had only felt a kind of affectionate sympathy for Tim, owing, no doubt, to his misfortunes, began to entertain for him the real. pure and Platonic sentiment; and, acting upon this sentiment, she often gave poor Tim most unmistakeable evidences of her hitherto concealed emotions.

Smile not, gentle reader, at the singular fancy of Miss Polyphema, for, as Sam Slick would say, "human nature is human nature," and our word for it there is as much human nature in woman-kind as there is in anybody. But to our tale. Miss Polyphema had an elder sister, who was to wed, on a certain day, Mr. Salathiel Spaulding, Esq., who was a briefless lawyer, justice of the peace, captain of militia, with a moral character of about ten thousand dollars, inducements sufficient to molify the sterner sensibilities of old Mr. and Mrs. Jones.

As the wedding day approached, Tim waited in anxious expectation for a card summoning him to the happy festival, but no such messenger of hope and joy greeted his eager sight, until late in the day on which the ceremony was to take place, an old domestic, faithful to the bidding of Miss Polyphema, bore a verbal message, requesting Tim's presence on the all-important occasion. The indefinition and love-stricken Tim was not slow in obeying the happy summons from his "ladie love," each carrying a bouquet, will form in open line on and mounted on his favorite gray charger, he was the sidewalk, and as Miss Lind passes through, each not the last to make his advent among the many smiling, merry and light-hearted guests awaiting of the multitude. She will receive the forty bouquets the interesting ceremony which was to make the gracefully and carry them into the hotel.

After the splicing had been duly performed and the ominous words, "man and wife," with the finis "amen," had fallen from the benignant lips of the venerable parson. "the mirth and fun grew fast and furious" far into the drowsy hours of the night, and Tim, as usual, did not escape many a biting jest and malicious sarcasm, which he bore with a patience becoming another Job or a christian martyr, until by a telegraphic sign well understood by himself and Miss Polyphema, they both left the room by opposite doors and were soon by themselves in deep conversation; and by the fierce gesticulations of Tim, it could easily be seen that he was receiving information of a no very pleasant nature.

"By the everlasting Jehoshaphat," Tim's favorite oath, "of Tom Owens and Bob Pratt dar to mutilate old gray by shaving the har off his tail and croppin' his mane, I swar I'll put my bowie clean through their derned provision establishment, so help me

What will not woman's wit accomplish? A few whispered words from Polyphema, and Tim's countenance brightened up and actually expanded into a most ludicrous and satisfied smile, as he gave his fair companion and counselor a most hearty smack upon her pouting and unresisting lips, and exclaim-"What an idear to come from a female woman By Jehoshaphat, Pol, but you are a trump, and just the gal for a 'mergency, and the way Tim Nuckles will prove it to the comprehension of Tom Owens and Bob Pratt, will be worth handing down to our posterity, ef we should live to marry and meet with such a calamity."

A "for shame, Tim!" and a saucy box upon the dexter ear from his protecting angel, and Miss Polyphema disappeared, leaving Tim wondering why the devil he ought to be ashamed of his posterity.

A few moments after saw Tim gliding among the trees under cover of the protecting darkness, and when he returned to the house, Tom Owens' fine and beautiful gray had exchanged places with Tim's favorite and ancient nag.

On entering the room, a knowing look at Polyphema assured her that her advice had been put in practice, and soon after, Tom Owens and Bob Pratt left, to perpetrate a most wicked and criminal joke upon poor Tim.

To reach the tree where they had seen poor Tim tie old gray, was the work of a moment, and two sharp knives, plied by skillful hands, soon left standing there the most doleful caricature upon horse kind that mortal eye ever beheld. It was soon whispered among those who looked upon Tim with an evil eye, that some one had fairly divested old gray of his "fair proportions," and many an extra torch was got in readiness in order that Tim might be placed in as ridiculous a light as possible; and even old Mr. Jones himself was highly delighted at the prospect of the ludicrous figure Tim would cut when mounted on his favorite gray. Tim could hardly restrain his own propensity to laugh outright, as he heard the suppressed whispers, and saw the smothered laugh betray itself in the broad grimmace of the men, and the tittering giggle of the women; but with a seeming innocence which argued more knave than fool, he inquired of Tom Owens "what the devil had happened—for his part he saw nothing to laugh at, and he believed they were poking fun at him because his coat-tail was so in the steamer Cherokee.

The dance ceased—the torches were lighted, and the company had proceeded to the grove where the horses were tied, when Tim was seen riding up, mounted on Old Gray, not a hair of his silver tail and venerable name injured by the sharp knives of here to-day, under the new law, and it has created Tom Owens and Bob Pratt.

"Hello, Tom Owens," sung out Tim, "the next time you and Bob Pratt conclude to shave the tail and mane of Old Gray, don't let him overhear the arrangement, 'cause he's a mighty knowin' old critter, and the way he can untie himself and tie some body else's hoss in the same place is curious to look Guards, and the U.S. troops accompanied the prison-

On another occasion, he took his text from Revelations, sixth chapter and fifth verse: 'And I beheld, and lo! a black horse; and he that sat on him had a pair of balances in his hand.' Unhappily, in reading the text, he mistook balances for bellowses, and went on to describe what kind of bellows they were. REVIEW OF THE WILMINGTON MARKET. FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 17, 1850

We have had no rain since our last issue, and our rivers continue entirely unnavigable above tide-way; but little receipt of a telegraph communication from Liverpool of a produce can, therefore, reach market, and trade has, in con equence, been rendered almost stagnant for the past week Below we present such remarks as are requisite to a fair state

Bacon.-North Carolina Bacon continues to come in freely, and there is very little demand, except for prime hams for family use, which sell readily at quotations We continue last weeks quotations.

BEEF CATTLE.—The price remains about the same as for Corn.-We hear of ne arrivals of corn this week, except a few small barrels per Rail Road, which go off at quotations. Stock in store about fair for the season. Meal scarce. COFFEE-The stock in store is fair, and prices firm.

FLOUR-No Fayetteville Flour arriving. Northern brands continue firm at quotations, from store at retail. LARD-Stock in store large, and sales dull, by the single barrel, at 81 cents, and 8 cents in lots.

LIME-Retails at $1 per single cask. No late arrivals. LUMBER-One raft good ordinary river flooring boards sold at $11, and one very good do. at $11 50 per M., with a imited demand. There is but few rafts on the market. But little enquiry for wide boards. No demand for scantling. Molasses-No recent arrivals. Sales of former receipts at quotations, in lots to suit.

NAVAL STORES.-In consequence of the very low stage o the rivers, no Turpentine arrives from above tide-way per river communication. The sales of the week reach about 1700 virgin and yellow dip; and $1 15 for the hard article. The highest price being for Railroad or Boat Turpentine, and the lowest for the rafted or river article. Tar .- One lot of 144 bbls. Tar arrived a few days since, and was taken at $1 50 | for sale low, by per bbl. Some sales of Rosin at $1 75 a $2 per bbl. for No. 1, and 90c. for No. 3 Spirits Turpentine .- Some few small lots sold this week at former prices. There is very little or the market. POTATOES- Sweet, 50 to 65 cents per bushel, from boat and carts. RICE-There has been several transactions in clean rice but the terms have not been made public. Quotations nom

SALT-Sack Salt sells from store at $1 10 per sack, and Alum at about quo: ations, in lots to suit. SHINGLES-Several lots have reached market, but prices are extremely low, and sales exceedingly dull. Sales of 30,-000 at $1 50, and 10,000 at $1 25. No demand.

STAVES-None arriving. White Oak Bbl. Staves much wanted. Quotations nominal. A small lot of superior Ash Heading sold at $9 per M. TIMBER-Market bare. No sales worth reporting. Quo-ations nominal. FREIGHTS-Coastwise without change. Not many vessels n port, and no great quantity of freights offering. See table EXCHANGE—On North, ? per ct. premium; and on South

PUNAWAY or abscended from the subscriber, on the 12th August, 1850, two negro men, one samed Moses and the other Bob.

DESCRIPTION.

Moses is inclined to be fleshy, about five feet seven or eig Moses is inclined to be fleshy, about five feet seven or eight inches high, about forty years old, from testh out, weights about 160 pounds, speaks very slow when spoken to, and has a sear on his under lip. Moses had on when he left, a blue linser surtout coat; when walking he steps very short, and holds himself erect. Color, very dark; has a very sullen look; a bunch of gray hair on the right side of his head.—Moses was carried from Duplin county, N. C., to Richmond, Va., where he was purchased by Joab Robertson, of Caswell county, N. C.

red; when spoken to be speaks quick; had on whiskers when he left. His dress consisted of a white homespun frock coat, and pantaleons of the same; inclined to be parrot toed. He was carried from Clauden county, Va., to Richmond, and then sold to Dr. Robertson.

These Negroes were purchased by me on the 27th of April, 1850, from Joab Robertson, for the purpose of trading. It is more than likely they have attempted to reach their former homes—Moses, his in Duplin county, N. C., and Bob, fits in Clauden county, Va.

AT A reward of Twenty-Five Dellars is offered for each of the above Negroes if lodged in any safe Jail so that I get them again.

I get them again.

##If arrested previous to this date, Firtzen Dollars, the reward at first offered, only will be paid.

Any information thankfully received.

VOLNEY B. PALMER is authorized to receive advertiseme and subscriptions for the Journal, in New York, Philadelphia and Boston, and receipt for payment for the same.

Jenny Lind and the Aristocracy A correspondent writing from New York, refers to the fact that a certain class there, who assume to be superior to the rest, have not yet attended the concerts of the Swedish Nightingale. He says: ⁴ The aristocratic and exclusive portion have not, as a class, yet heard Jenny Lind. A few of this extreme end of "upper-ten-dom," were seen at the first concert at Castle Garden, but since then the low price of tickets rendering the attendance of the bourgeois and upper ten of the canaille an easy matter-thus creating an atmosphere in which delicate people who live in palaces and glass houses could not exist. Alas, for the aristocracy of wealth! Compelled to forego the glory of being the first in this pelled to torego the giory of being the first in this country to "patronise" merit and goodness, it is obliged to sequester itself in up-town cages to escape contamination by contact with common people, who have thus far appreciated and admired the gentle vocalist. What a commentary is this on the ostentatious musical taste which has heretofore supported the Opera House at Astor Place! Nobody doubts that these deluded people would attend Jenny's con-certs, if they were really possessed of the vaunted admiration and appreciation of artistes and musicand their absence proves the truth of the popular belief in that respect."

Well, let no feeling of irritation trouble us on this account. These people must be different from the rest of the world, or they would be most wretched. As their sources of positive enjoyment are, in the very nature of things, limited, let us not quarrel with them about a few negative pleasures like that referred to above.

Pumping a Lake Dry.

Dr. J. V. C. Smith, the editor of the Boston Medical Surgical Journal, who is now on a visit to Europe, gives an interesting description, in his editorial correspondence from Holland, of the manner in which the Lake of Haarlem is being drained by steam engines, and its waters sent to the sea.

Six miles from Amsterdam is the inland lake of Haarlem, 21 miles long by 11 in width, which, three hundred years ago, was found to be perceptibly increasing by shooting its waters further and further, By way of a trophy, the victor deliberately skinned and covering up the land, threatening the first commercial port of the realm with destruction by flow- with dexterity-and then returned, in the pride of ing in upon its bank. Various schemes at that remote epoch were devised by able counsellors to stay the threatening danger. Three Dutch engineers, of acknowledged ability, proposed draining off the water, first raising it by wind mills. They are entitled to remembrance, from having suggested the plan adopted in 1849 for averting an impending calamity.

Seven years since, delay being no longer safe, a canal was dug around the whole circumference of the lake, averaging 200 feet in width by ten deep. Three monster engines are housed on the sides of the lake, some six or eight miles apart, each moving eight monstrous pumps. All the pistons are raised at once, at every revolution of the machinery raising 15,000 gallons of water, which is emptied into the canal, whence it is hastened on by a fourth engine faster than it would otherwise move to the Zuyder Zee, and thus it reaches the sea, fifteen miles distant. In April, 1849, the pumps, worked by three of the think. A man they called Jake spoke it, and I'll mightiest steam engines perhaps ever constructed, tell you all about it, for it made such an expression were set in motion, and up to this date, July 25th, upon me that I learned it all by heart. "He said have lowered the contents of the lake seven feet .-By next April it is anticipated that the bottom will from this ancient basin. All this is executed at the expense of government."

fine, so magnificent country? Besides that, they some reason to be proud of themselves. We have mouth; then the justice of the peace in fair round given the chief features of their eastern and inland belly with good apron lined, and full of old hand has built other Bostons and New Yorks in the har-ion, sands teeth, sands eyes, sands taste, sands sarsabors of Oregon and California. This vast crowd of ever-onward pressing settlers is not formed of the same materials as the inhabitants of an European province: that is, there are not at its head a few in telligent, but delicately brought up men of capital, whilst all the rest are ignorant laborers; but every one of these pioneers of civilization can handle the that things should only go on as they have been going on for the last two centuries—there will be seated upon that vast continent a population greater than that of all Europe, all speaking the same language, all active minded, intelligent, and well off.

They will stand, as it were, the centre of the world between the two centres to taken, that it may interest our readers to learn some thing of her history. The history of the history between the two great oceans, with Europe on one hand and Asia on the other. With such a future before him, we must pardon the Yankee if we find a little dash of self-complacency in his composition; and bear with the surprise and annoyance which he expresses at finding that we know so little of himself or his country. Our humble opinion is that we ought wives, on occasions of floods. Mounted on her patto know better. Great as is the influence which Ato know better. Great as is the influence which America has already had upon Europe, we conceive it is destined to have upon the world. Frazer's (Eng.) Magazine. Southey's Dancing Master.

That poor man was for three years the plague of my life, and I was the plague of his. In some unhappy mood he prevailed on my mother to let me learn to dance; persuading himself, as well as her, that I should do credit to his teaching. It must have been for my sins that he formed this opinion; in an evil hour for him and for me was it formed; he would have had much less trouble in teaching a bear, and far better success. I do not remember that I set out with any dislike or contempt of dancing, but the unconquerable incapacity which it was soon evident that I possessed, produced both, and the more he labored to correct an incorrigible awkwardness, the more awkwardly of course I performed. I verily believe the fiddlestick was applied as much to my head as to the fiddle-strings when I was called out. But the rascal had a worse way than that of punishing me. He would take my hands in his, and lead me down a dance; and then the villain would apply his thumb nail against the flat surface of mine, in the middle, and press it till he left the mark there; this species of torture I suppose to have been his own invention; and so intolerable it was, that at last whenever he had recourse to it I kicked his shins .-Luckily for me, he got into a scrape by beating a boy unmercifully at another school, so that he was afraid to carry on this sort of contest; and, giving up at last all hope of ever making me a votary of the Graces or of the dancing Muse, he contented himself with shaking his head, and turning up his eyes in hopelessness, whenever he noticed my performance

HIGH, LOW, JACK AND GAME.—A number of well dressed boys were once tormenting a sailor who was in vain endeavoring to keep them off with a broken spade handle, which he was using for a club, when a gentleman called out to them. "Boys! If Jack is high, it is rather low business for you to be making game of him." Jack, whose wits were as sharp as a diamond—the principal difficulty with him seeming to be in the lightness of his feet, or the unsteadiness of the ground under them, which made his easiest mode of progression to be on all fours—immediately responded! "Then we are even. I am high Jack to their low game. But clubs is trumps, the deuce in me if I don't bent 'em yet to my heart's content.'

A man in this State having carried off another man's wife, the husband had him arrested, indicted, and convicted of petit is reeny, for taking his wife's clothes. The Boston Post suggests it should have been for petti coat larceny.

"What's the matter with your veal?" said a na sal-voice Yankee to a street butcher, the other morning; what makes it look so blue? Did'nt die did it?"
"No," said the other, it "did'nt die zactly, it kind o' gin out !"

A Tiger Blayer.

ance of a native who was preparing to attack it sin-gle handed. The man was short, not robust, but Shall I tell you a bit of a story, having no connex compactly made, sinewy and active, having a countenance remarkable for its expression of calm determination. He was entirely naked above the hips, below which he simply wore coarse linen trousers reaching half-way down the thigh. He was armed with a ponderous knife, the blade of which was exceedingly wide and thick, with an edge almost as keen as a razor. On the left arm he bore a small affects in the memory of the "old uns" of Mobile—conical shield about cinhteen inches in discass. point of the same metal projecting from the boss.

My companion and myself walked with this intrepid little Hindoo to the lair of the sleeping foe. We soon reached the nullah, and discovered the beautiful beast at the extremity basking in the sun. Its ful beast at the extremity basking in the sun. Its proportions were prodigious. I have never seen one larger. The nullah was narrow, but at the bottom pertectly free from inequalities, so that the area was more than usually favorable for the operations of the undaunted tiger slayer. As soon as we reached the spot, the man boldly leaped into the hollow, at the enemy from his slumbers. Upon seeing its resolute aggressor slowly advance, the animal raised itself upon its fore legs with a terrific howl. As the little Hindoo continued to approach, which he did slowly, and with his dark eyes keenly fixed upon the face of his formidable foe, the tiger rose to its full face of his formidable foe, the tiger rose to its full height, and began to lash its sides furiously with its last evidently appeared to be in a state of embarrassment. Still the man advanced deliberately but undanitedly, the unessiness and rose of the content but undauntedly, the uneasiness and rage of the excited beast increasing with every step. At length it crouched, evidently with a determination to make "Is this creek swimming?" he growled, after a its terrific spring. The man suddenly stopped, when the tiger paused, turned, and, uttering a horrible noise, between a snarl and a howl, made one step forward and sprung towards its victim, who instantly bent his body, received the animal's paws upon his shield, dashed the knife into his body, and fell under, but almost entirely beyond, the extremities of his wounded enemy. "How d'ye do, I'm so glad to see you," said Mrs. Partington as she stopped at Mrs. Peabodie's on her way from the depot. Mrs. Partington lived on the beach, and seeing pudent waves on the beach, and kept up a very courageous pushing back, and wringing out. As the Atlantic shook its main, and rushed, more terrible, to the attack, every moment encroaching a foot, Mrs. Partington's fury rose higher. But, though Mrs. Partington had conquered sundry duck puddles, and deluges of rain; and had even beaten Mr. Partington, in divers engagements; the swelling sea was too much for her. Seizing him by the tail, I tried to get him out of his place of refuge; but I hauled in vain; he only drew his large folds firmer together; I could not move him. Gleanings by the Editor of the American Parisori-Importance and Effects of Brainis

In illustrating the propriety of relieving arable lands of any excess of water, professor Gray, very forcibly remarks: "The necessity and importance of draining wet ploughing and pulverising of the soil until late in the season, and when the attempt is finally made it can but imperfectly succeed; hence the manures, not being properly incorporated with the soil, are deprived of their effect upon the roots. The crop is checked and is liable to be injured by early frosts.

This effect is exemplified in peat swamps, where the vegetable matters being prevented from decay by water, accumulate in large quantities, to the depth often of 20 feet, and form peat.

4. When the roots of plants extend into a wet soil, the food is too much diluted, or is not prepared in sufficient quantities to ensure a healthful and vigorous growth. Leaves and ill formed shoots will sometimes be abundant instead of flowers and fruit.

5. An excess of water injures and destoys the fito drink. A length and a half—and the stream no brous portion of the roots, or spongelets, by means deeper! Thirty feet further—and a decided shoal- of which, nourishment is received. This effect takes place when the water becomes stagnant and putre-scent, as it is liable to become when the land is levbe a thundering swift deep channel between this el and the subsoil retentive. In others, the plant rots off at the ground, especially if there is light and every farmer. For a system of draining, rightly conducted, will not only remedy the evils above described, but will save much time and labor in the cultivation of the crop; two weeks at least, will be gained by the getting in and ripening of it. The product will be one-third greater, and one-third of the labor saved in the tilling.

De Condolle regards the influence of stagnant water about the neck of plants, as operating simply to exclude the oxygen of the air; but Lindley, more properly attributes the injury to the low temperature of the soil in which water is suffered to accumulate. It is because of the danger, says Professor Norton, in his new and able work upon

"Scientific Agriculture," in treating of the subject of the mechanical improvement of the soil, has the following chapters:

THE EFFECTS OF TOO MUCH MOISTURE IN THE SOIL. "I come now to mention a defect in soils which is of very great importance, and which has not as yet been fully appriciated in this country. This is the presence of too much moisture. Wherever water is so abundant in the soil as to completely saturate it, various evil effects take place.

The necessary decomposition of organic substances is arrested, and certain vegetable acids are formed, called by chemists humic, ulmic, geic ucids, etc. In swamps and low grounds generally, these accumulate to a large extent, and form the deep black soil or muck of such situations.

So long as these acids are present in such excessive quantity, valuable plants refuse to grow; but as is well known, when the muck is taken out and dried, and warmth obtain access, and the process of decomgood earnest.
